EMA upgrades weather detection capability

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

The National Weather Service's ability to detect severe weather in Jefferson County and the surrounding areas got a serious upgrade last weekend with the installation of a new weather monitoring station at the Jefferson County EMA office on Green Road on Madison's hilltop.

The new station features state-of-the-art weather monitoring equipment that will allow local authorities to better gauge the conditions outside. But more importantly, the new station will send data in real time to the NWS office in Louisville, allowing that office a better idea of the weather

Madison prepared to market Madison Plaza site

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison Economic Development Director Matt Wirth said the COVID-19 pandemic hasn't made remarketing the former Madison Plaza site any easier but the city is ready to list that property for sale.

Speaking to the Madison Redevelopment Commission Wednesday, Wirth said the property would go on the market Thursday with offer sheets listed at $1.7 million for the western parcel earmarked for commercial redevelopment at the corner of Michigan Road and Clifty Drive and $750,000 for the wooded eastern parcel slated for development as

Commissioners OK interlocal agreement with Madison

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Jefferson County Commissioners approved their portion of an interlocal agreement with the City of Madison Thursday night that will help fund construction of the new county jail in exchange for additional county funding for economic development and historic preservation.

Madison City Council signed its portion of the measure Tuesday, which provides that Madison will contribute half of its annual revenue from a new public safety tax to help pay off construction and operation of the new jail — about $450,000 annually — while Jefferson County will contribute $250,000 to Madison's PACE Program for preservation and revitalization this year and then $45,000 annually while appointing a member to the PACE Grant Committee.

The county will also contribute $40,000 annually toward joint county/city economic development activities to grow industry in the area, helping cover staffing and planning initiatives, as well as implement an addiction recovery program at the new jail once completed to help alleviate the revolving door of addicts cycling through the criminal justice system.

County Commission President David Bramer seemed happy with the end result, adding that the city's contribution meant

A two-vehicle accident on State Road 56 near Hanover involving a motorcycle and a pickup truck sent a Jefferson County man to a Louisville trauma center by air ambulance on Wednesday afternoon.

The accident occurred at about 3:15 p.m. near the Dutch Market just east of Hanover when a motorcycle ridden by Josh Morrison, 30, of Lexington, collided with a pickup truck driven by Noah McIntosh, 72, of Austin.

The accident was investigated by the Jefferson County Sheriffs Office and the cause of the crash is pending completion of that investigation.

Board of Zoning Appeals approves variance for new Deputy firehouse

BY COLLIN OVERTON

The Jefferson County Board of Zoning Appeals unanimously approved Deputy Volunteer Fire Department's request for a variance on its property to meet the size of its new firehouse Wednesday night, which will replace one destroyed in a December 2018 fire.

The original firehouse burned on Dec. 17, 2018, when a blaze that started in the attic gutted the facility, burning through the fire bays, office area and destroying three of the department's four vehicles when firefighters were unable to get to their equipment to battle the fire.

An outpouring of support from the community and other fire departments followed, with locals and out-of-towners helping find places to store equipment, hold fundraisers and donate for the purchase o new equipment and facilities. The Anderson, Indiana Fire Department donated a firetruck to the company less than a month after the incident.

In August, the fire company received a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant from the state, which combined with other donations and fundraisers,

Madison, Southwestern firm up plans for high school graduations

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Graduation plans for the two public high schools in Jefferson County are starting to come together and so far both look very different.

Madison Consolidated High School and Southwestern High School announced their plans for graduation this week after Hoosiers began Stage 2 of the "Back on Track Indiana" initiative Monday, which will gradually reopen the state's economy and loosen social distancing restrictions as long as the number of COVID-19 cases continues to drop.

The state began permitting gatherings of up to 25 people Monday in all counties except in Marion, Lake and Cass and allowed some non-essential businesses to reopen. If the curve flattens at the rate government leaders hope, gatherings of more than 250 may be allowed by July 4 (Stage 5) and schools could have an opportunity to celebrate seniors in a more traditional way.

Madison has an in-person graduation planned for this summer if that is indeed the case, according to a schedule posted to the district's Facebook page Monday.

Officials urge caution as county begins reopening

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Although Jefferson County began reopening businesses and offices this week, that doesn't mean the threat from COVID-19 has passed.

That was the message from Tammy Monroe on Friday morning during the Jefferson County EMA's weekly COVID briefing. Monroe, the county's top health administrator, made it a point to emphasize that precautions still need to be in place.

"If you need to go out for essential items we ask that you still please wear a mask or other facial covering and maintain social distancing," Monroe said. "And if you're sick, over 65 or have a weakened immune system, we ask that you stay home."

Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb announced last week a relaxation on restrictions that have been in place since late March, moving the state into "Stage 2." That means that while businesses can open up, facial coverings are still recommended and social gatherings should be limited to no more than 25 people, assuming proper precautions are taken.

The next milestone for the state is on Monday, when restaurants and bars that serve food may open at 50% capacity. All servers and employees will be required to wear facial coverings.

"Businesses must develop safeguards to ensure the well-being for all employees and customers," Monroe said.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said that he was pleased with the way the community has responded to the pandemic and noted that the state has set up a marketplace to allow small businesses to acquire the personal protection equipment needed for their employees. That website is backontrack.in.gov.

Several city and county offices are either now open or will be opening in the coming days. City Hall reopened on Monday but Courtney is asking residents to still use the drive through window if possible. Madison Police Department is under normal operation and the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department will open under normal conditions on Monday. The Jefferson County Health Department will reopen on Monday for all services but will be appointment-only for now with no walk-ups allowed.

There were 34 positive cases of COVID-19 in Jefferson County as of Friday morning and 1,038 tests had been administered. No deaths have been reported in the county, but Public Health Coordinator Blythe Couch said several patients are currently in critical enough condition to be on ventilators at King's Daughters' Health.

The COVID-19 clinic at KDH remains open five days a week and KDH Director of Emergency Services Shane Williams said the clinic continues to see patients daily, although that number has been decreasing. Direct access testing for COVID-19 antibodies is still available for $75. Those tests can scheduled by patients or through their physician. The number for the clinic is 812-801-8010.

KDH has also resumed elective surgeries and has begun the process of rescheduling physician appointments. Williams asked that anybody who visits the hospital please wear a facial covering.

Jefferson County remains one of the least-infected counties in the state. Of counties bordering Jefferson, only Switzerland has reported fewer cases, 15 as of Friday morning. Scott has 73 cases, Jennings 93, Ripley 98 and Clark 358. Switzerland has also not reported a death while Scott has had two, Jennings three, Ripley six and Clark 23.

Trimble makes appointment, discusses local virus impact

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County Fiscal Court appointed a new member to the county's Ethics Board and discussed the impact of COVID-19 locally during a short special meeting via Zoom teleconferencing Friday morning.

After some technical difficulties that delayed the start of the meeting by about 30 minutes, magistrates voted to appoint Terry Coy Chester to the Ethic Board seat vacated by the resignation of Jim Smith recently. According to Judge Executive Todd Pollock, Chester is a Bedford resident and has lived in the county for more than 40 years.

Fiscal Court was also set to vote on term limits for zoning commissioners, but with county attorney Crystal Heinz absent due to a meeting with others in the court system, magistrates elected to table the vote in order to first a her legal opinion by Heinz at their next meeting. Magistrate J.D. Jones and Pollock did say it would be practical to stagger terms on the commission so that every member isn't replaced at the same time.

Pollock gave an update that 20 county residents were tested Thursday during the first day COVID-19 testing was offered at the Trimble County Health Department in a partnership with the North Central District Health Department, UPS and Commonwealth of Kentucky. Testing at the health department will resume next Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon by appointment only.

Those wanting to get tested should call ahead and schedule with the North Central District Health Department at 502-390-2600.

"Those people at the health department have been working really hard to stay in front of this thing and make sure that the guidance is getting out and trying to keep people informed. I think that's the most important thing we can do, really," Pollock said.

Trimble County has recorded just three positive cases of the coronavirus to date, but the impact has been felt even greater financially. Magistrates adopted a resolution Friday accepting $559,223 in road funds from the Kentucky Department of Transportation. The county hasd been scheduled to receive about $700,000 before funds were slashed due to a re-prioritization of money at the state level for virus emergency relief, Pollock said.

County officials are unsure how that will affect paving projects this summer. Magistrate Chris Liter mentioned the county was working with the state to get money reimbursed and said paving would hopefully start before June 30.

In other business, Fiscal Court agreed to purchase a $433 plaque from Ransdell Funeral Home to honor former county employee Ronnie McCain, who died late last month after serving local fire departments for decades and spending time as the county emergency management director. Pollock said McCain's volunteer work dated back to 1969.

"If you had a story about his life, it would be about volunteering and about helping others," Pollock said.

Magistrates also approved a sealed bid from Powell Farms to mow all county roads in three separate rounds before the fall for $22,000.

taking place nearly an hour from its windows.

"We're excited to have this new weather station but the National Weather Service is very excited," said Troy Morgan, director of the Jefferson County EMA. "This will allow the National Weather Service to see what is happening in Jefferson County in real time and will make their jobs a whole lot easier."

Morgan made acquiring the weather station one of his top priorities when he took over as EMA director in 2017. The equipment was actually purchased a year ago, but the EMA opted to wait until this week to install it. Morgan said they wanted to make sure the EMA's new permanent office was ready before installation, and then needed to wait for a nice enough day in order to comply with the COVID-19 pandemic social distancing rules now in place.

That day was last Saturday. With assistance from the Madison Township Fire Department, the monitoring device was installed 7-10 feet above the EMA offices on an existing radio tower. The device needs to be far enough above the roof in order to not face temperature contamination and allow free access to monitor wind conditions.

Morgan said the station is now online and NWS Louisville is receiving data. The new station should allow the NWS to provide a more accurate forecast of the weather.

"The station not only monitors the weather, but it records the latitude, longitude and the elevation. In the past, the National Weather Service would have to calculate what the weather in Madison was but now they can get it instantly," Morgan said. "The weather is different here than in Louisville and this gives them a more detailed picture."

Morgan said that the new station will allow Jefferson County EMA to have a more accurate details on current weather conditions. He said the station is the only one of its kind he knows of in Jefferson County.

"There may be weather stations at Hanover College or the Madison High School science lab I'm sure, and of course there are home stations and rain gauges nailed to barns," Morgan said. "But this is the latest technology and the same equipment that the National Weather Service uses. We're excited to have it."

The upgraded weather center is just the latest in a massive overhaul at the new EMA office. Eventually all emergency dispatch services will be moved to the new office allowing officials to have a central location in the event of a disaster in the community. Morgan wasn't sure when relocation of the dispatch center will be completed, but said it will be "sooner rather than later."

"When the dispatch center moves up here it will give EMA a full-time professional facility," said Morgan. "Obviously we don't want to have a large-scale incident, but if it happens, you can communicate with people down the hall rather than downtown and it eliminates the need for runners and the sort in order to communicate with each other. It will be a good thing."

Arbor Day giveaway scheduled for today

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison's Tree Board will celebrate Arbor Day on Saturday, May 9, by giving away sugar maple and flowering American plum saplings at the Madison Farmers' Market.

The tree giveaway will take place near the Broadway Fountain starting at 9 a.m.

Madison has earned the Arbor Day Foundation's "Tree City USA" designation since 1997. The designation is earned by passing a Tree Care Ordinance, and maintaining a Tree Board with adequate budget to oversee the care of Madison's urban forest and street trees.

Arbor Day is an annual observance to celebrate the role of trees in our lives and promotes tree planting and care. Trees have appeared throughout history and literature as a symbol of life. It was first observed as a formal holiday in the US in 1872, in Nebraska, but tree planting festivals are as old as civilization.

The first Arbor Day in Indiana was observed on April 11, 1884.

the county wouldn't have to raise the public safety tax that's been in effect since Jan. 1. The county will contribute 100% of its revenues from the tax toward jail costs.

"There was some back and forth on it, but in the end it worked out so that everybody will be able to get things done," Bramer said.

County officials are still unsure about exactly how they'll staff and house inmates in the proposed Jail Chemical Addiction Program (JCAP) they must now offer in the upcoming facility. The program was started in Dearborn County and has shown promising results in seven other county jails, providing professional and group therapy and counseling while costing less than $14 a day per inmate.

Sheriff Dave Thomas said he didn't expect major problems, but that jail staff is concerned about how the separate housing unit for the program would interfere with bed capacity. He said it was also unclear how exactly the program would be staffed, the impact it would have on the sheriff's office budget and what grants he should look for to minimize the fiscal impact.

"Our only fear was coming up to a point where we have 12 beds and we have eight people, then we have four open beds we can't fill. Then we have to go back and maybe start overcrowding in some of the cell blocks," Thomas said. "But that's something we worry about all the time."

Bramer agreed that bed space would be something to think about and mentioned the possibility that some inmates in the program might be housed in the current jail downtown.

As far as staffing and grants, Bramer said there is time to plan, research and reach out to other counties that have implemented JCAP to see what they've done operationally to make it work. Officials would also need to work out details with the court system and determine how JCAP might impact sentencing, he said.

"We've got time to start planning that out and seeing what's going to happen. But I think we need to keep that in the equation. I don't think necessarily that it's going to be staffed by your jail officers but I think we need to see if we can find the way to do it without that," Bramer told Thomas.

The interlocal agreement is now on the agenda for Jefferson County Council to discuss at its May 12 meeting, Bramer said.

In other business at Thursday's meeting:

- Commissioners approved a road transfer between Jefferson County, the City of Madison and the Indiana Department of Transportation for portions of State Road 56, S.R. 256 and U.S. 421.
- Bramer said a draft comprehensive plan for the county has been put together and will be released to the public and Plan Commission soon. A final version could go before a public hearing by late summer, he said.
- Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan said the EMA Operations Center was on Day 62 since being activated at Level 4 at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. Morgan added that the Indiana Department of Homeland Security sent Personal Protection Equipment to the agency last Thursday and that the PPE was distributed to police, fire and first responders Saturday.
- Thomas reported an in-house inmate population of 98 to 99 at the Jefferson County Jail and an out-of-county population of 47. The sheriff's office has also been holding 298 arrest warrants on file for the past two weeks, so the initial period once COVID-19 restrictions loosen should be a hectic time for law enforcement in the county as those warrants begin being executed, he said. "I looked at the warrant list today and there's somewhere around 10 that I know probably every policeman in this county will go and try and get them off the street," Wallace said.
- Commissioners accepted two bids on road projects. The first was for Wingham Paving to do crack repair on Marble Hill Road, Cross Road, the Old Francisco subdivision, Meadows subdivision and every street in Deputy for $24,676. The second was for Pavement Solutions to micro-resurface Old Francisco and the Valley Court Apartments lot for $20,700.

only left the department needing about $200,000 to fund the new facility.

Chief Bryan Hazelwood explained to Zoning Appeals board members Wednesday dimensions of the new firehouse during a Zoom teleconference. According to original projections, the 8,254 square foot facility will have four vehicle bays and include training and community rooms for firefighters and space to host community events.

The variance requested for the property, located at 14275 West Mulberry Street, reduced the required setbacks from at least 35 feet to 22 feet on the northwest side and from at least 35 feet to 28.85 feet on the northeast side. The board approved a separate variance from Deputy requesting the setbacks from the side yard be reduced from 10 feet to 7 feet on the east side and 6.40 feet on the west side. The property is listed as an R4 low residential lot.

Board members did not take issue with adjusting any of the setbacks or the location of the firehouse, noting it would likely increase the property value of other nearby buildings and be an asset to the area.

"I think it's great that they're getting a new firehouse. They need it there and it's a service to the community, I don't see a problem at all," member Darrell Ginn said.

The BZA unanimously approved two other variances Wednesday. One was for Brian Hart's 12.66 acre-property on East Wolf Run Road in Madison Township, where he wants to reduce the required setback from the road from 90 feet to 66.5 feet to accommodate a 16-by-26-foot addition to his home. Board members approved Hart's request, noting the road isn't heavily traveled and neighbors had not objected to the addition.

The other was for Daniel Jones' to reduce a 25-foot setback to 11 feet from the side property line of his home on East Geyman Road in Shelby Township. Jones wants to build a 40-by-40-by-12 addition to his existing garage and neighbors did not object.

The Jefferson County BZA will meet over Zoom again on Wednesday, June 3.

We know this is an incredibly difficult time for many in our community.

Concerned about lack of social distancing

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I live in a small community in New Jersey. My wife and I have three daughters, and the thought of one of them getting sick from the coronavirus and having to stay in the hospital alone frightens us to death. We do our very best, utilizing delivery services and every other option at our disposal to prevent the spread of this virus.

We have many neighbors, but there are four homes in particular within sight of our home that don't practice social distancing at all. Each household has several children and all the children play with each other. Every household also has one or both parents working, leaving the house every day for work. It is extremely frustrating to watch this go on, day in and day out. Our children see their children playing together and, of course, question why they aren't allowed to play as well. Thank God they understand when we explain that those children, those households, aren't following the rules.

We have a hotline we can call to report those not following social distancing measures. Would you feel guilty about reporting them? I'd be happy to hear your input. — Nervous Neighbor

Dear Nervous Neighbor: No, I wouldn't feel guilty calling that hotline. It's not tattling when it could save lives. But I'd also encourage you to take the lead on building a sense of community (and with it, collective responsibility) in your neighborhood. Call your neighbors (or mail letters, if you don't have their phone numbers) to see how things are going. If there's a household in which both parents are essential workers, see if they need help connecting with safe child care resources. (Check with your local government for information on that.)

Dear Annie: With homeschooling my kids now and trying to keep up our love for nature while not leaving our neighborhood, I stumbled upon this idea you may like to share with your readers. The National Wildlife Federation has a program where you can earn your garden or backyard a designation as a Certified Wildlife Habitat.

My kids and I had a blast moving through the National Wildlife Federation's checklist to get our yard in shape to become certified. We learned a lot and the kids were happy to Google different terms we didn't know, and to research how to build a few contraptions. (I did not know that butterflies needed a "puddler"; I didn't even know what that was! But we had fun building a few.) When we had all the tasks completed, we simply applied online and made a donation.

We all learned a lot and had a sense of pride in our community and in creating a space for our furry and crawly friends. — Amanda B.

Much love to moms

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Mothers: "A mother's arms are made of tenderness and children sleep soundly in them." — Victor Hugo.

To all the mothers out there: Happy Mother's Day! To everyone for whom this is a difficult holiday, may it land gently, to borrow a phrase from columnist and author Connie Schultz.

Dear Annie: I compare the anxiety of wanting quarantine to end to those of us who, in the back seat of the car as children, anxiously asked, "Are we there yet?"

Despite boredom and uncomfortable proximity to each other while in the car, we finally made it to our destination, and the time was right to move freely. However, during that car ride, we couldn't just decide we were "there." Where would we have been? We had to persevere to get to the correct "there," no matter how frustrated we were about how long the trip was taking. And we had to trust the people in charge to get us "there."

Since the lockdown, I have discovered that I am a happy introvert. All my life I have been outgoing, helping others, diving in at the slightest suggestion that I could be of benefit in some way. In the end, I often found myself tired and empty.

I am retired and live alone, having moved several hundreds of miles from my lifelong home just months ago. When the possibility of quarantine was evolving, I decided to make the best of it by planning to be busy at home.

I even discovered projects that I had put aside. Now, those projects are being completed. Hobbies that I wanted to try are coming to life, too. There is energy to exercise, and, for the first time in my life, I am sleeping soundly.

Though I focus on the reason for this time I have to explore these hobbies and projects, and I contemplate the suffering that is occurring, I include thanks in my prayers that I am content. I am a firm believer that attitude is what gets us through.

I am thankful to have been introduced to this "me," who has been waiting in the wings. While being removed from the fast pace that life had become, I hope others have rediscovered and enjoyed what they also may have set aside. May we find that life as we knew it isn't all we thought it was, and develop a new perspective on our blessings. — Self-Discovery

Dear Self-Discovery: Congratulations on discovering what makes you happy and content. Knowing oneself is one of the greatest gifts you can give to yourself and others. Having a positive attitude can certainly help the human spirit to thrive during unsettling times. By slowing down the pace of your life, you sped up the pace of finding joy in your everyday life, and that is a wonderful life to live.

CRASHES

The extent of Morrison's injuries is not known, but he did suffer a leg injury in the collision and could have other possible injuries. He was transported from the scene to University of Louisville Hospital by the Air Methods helicopter. McIntosh was not injured in the crash. The sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by the Hanover Police Department and the King's Daughters' EMS. No charges have been filed.

Meanwhile, a two-vehicle accident near the top of Hanging Rock Hill in Madison sent a 17-year-old driver to the hospital with a leg injury late Wednesday night.

A motorcyle and the rider's belongings are scattered along State Road 56 near Hanover after the bike coliided with a truck near the Dutch Market on Wednesday. The rider suffered leg and other possible injuries and was flown to a trauma center in Louisville.

According to Madison Police Chief John Wallace, a southbound Ford Fusion driven by Autumn Cassidy, 17, of Dupont, collided with a Toyota Camry driven by Miranda Anderson, of Madison, at about 11:13 p.m. in the 1500 block of Cragmont Street. Anderson was apparently backing her car into her driveway when Cassidy rounded a curve and was unable to stop in time to avoid the crash.

Two passengers in the Cassidy vehicle, a 37-year-old and an 8-year-old, escaped injury as did Anderson. The accident was investigated by the Madison Police Department and no charges have been filed.

GRADUATION

According to Madison's schedule, graduation is set for 2 p.m. on Sunday, July 26 at Salm Gymnasium, "virtually only if necessary." The high school's theatre department is also planning to present its production of "Newsies" the three days before, with showings scheduled for July 23-25 at the Opel Sherman Auditorium.

The Saturday before on July 18, MCS plans to host a senior parade and social during daytime hours. Practices for fall sports program are also set to open on July 6, according to the plan.

"All of these dates and plans are tentative and will remain in accordance with the Governor's 'Back on Track Indiana' Plan," the district said. "All plans are contingent upon all stages successfully rolling out on time and circumstances are safe to gather."

Southwestern, on the other hand, has committed to a virtual graduation and will hold its ceremonies at the end of May.

The district released its own graduation plans to Facebook Thursday, which are similar to Trimble County's in that graduates will be filmed separately crossing a stage and receiving their diploma with that video edited into a virtual commencement to then be broadcast. Each student will arrive at the high school library at a different time slot over three days and walk across the stage while being filmed by a professional videographer. Each graduate will be allowed to bring 6-8 guests.

Each student's walk will be edited into a video commencement that will be given to each family in DVD format and aired on Madison TV 15 with links on the district's website and Facebook pages at 7 p.m. on Friday, May 29.

Southwestern is also planning a "parade portion" of graduation for seniors.

"Our goal is to make this celebration memorable for out students, but also comply with the Indiana State Department of Health guidelines for social distancing," the district said in a release. "This decision was not made lightly. While we wish to salvage as much of the wonderfulness and memories that high school entails, we will not do it at the expense of the health of our students, staff, and community."

PLAZA

multi-family housing. He said the appraisals the city has received on the land are "reflected in the offer sheets."

The city reached an agreement with the former owner to purchase the combined 23 acres for $2.75 million earlier this year and has been evaluating the property and planning a strategy for its sale and redevelopment ever since.

Although the combined offer sheets are less than the city's purchase price, the 12.02-acre commercial site and 11.65-acre residential tract could sell for more depending on interest in the property. Either way, the city stands to get its money back in the long run by taking a site that has essentially sat idle for more than a decade and develop it into a more valuable job- and revenue-producing asset.

"Clearly, I will say this, and it probably goes without saying, the pandemic didn't help us a lot — didn't help the market a lot — so we're working through that as well in this process," Wirth told the Commission.

However, Wirth added that the current economic downturn has not impacted the number of investors who are interested in that property or other properties being redeveloped in the city — like the former Cotton Mill building that's being renovated into a boutique hotel along the Ohio River and the former Tower Tack Manufacturing site that is close to completion as a housing development — and all current projects are moving forward.

"The city is not seeing any back-off in investors with projects ongoing," Wirth said.

Mayor Bob Courtney also noted that despite dealing with a multitude of public health and safety and economic issues during the weeks-long coronavirus emergency, city officials have not lost focus on making something positive happen at the Madison Plaza property.

"We're going through the process and there is still lots of work to do in acquiring and redeveloping that site," Courtney said. "It's still high priority."

The offer sheets are due back June 3 with the Redevelopment Commission scheduled to meet later that evening.

While on the subject of redevelopment of city property, Wirth asked the Commission for authorization to have soil tests and a geological report conducted on an 11-acre tract the city owns at the former Robus Leather property at Shun Pike and JA Berry Lane.

The city paid $178,500 for 15.7 acres at the site in 2011 and has since sold off a portion of that to the New Madison Brewing Company LLC. Wirth said while the brewing company did not request soil tests and a geological report, some new prospects he is currently dealing with have requested that documentation.

"The brewery didn't feel like they needed it," Wirth said. " I do have some interest from a prospect that would like a geo tech report … and quite frankly even if this project doesn't come, if we're going to market that property, we probably need a geo tech report."

Wirth said the cost would not exceed $5,500 and the city would end up with an accurate soil report that would be valid for up to three years.

Commission member Joe Craig said the test would be similar to what the county conducted before buying nearby property on JA Berry Lane for the proposed new Jefferson County Jail.

The other business, the Commission:

We Are All In This Together

We're establishing a $100,000 set-aside target to assist local businesses with marketing and advertising services during this historically challenging economic window related to the COVID-19 crisis!

"So many businesses have had to close up or limit their business. The loss of revenues has forced layoffs, and threatens the very sustainability of that business. While the government has offered some help, in most cases it's not enough or they don't qualify for one reason or another. And just opening back up is no guarantee things will return to normal. The pressure on local businesses is tremendous. We want to help and offering advertising matching funds is what we can do for our community. We want every business to fully recover and do everything we can to help that happen."
